STEEL TRUST AND AMALGAMATED SO FAR HAVE ABOUT BROKEN EVEN.

About Sixteen Thousand Men Went Out Monday Morning, Says President Shaffer.

SECRETARY WILLIAMS RECEIVES A SIGNIFICANT LETTER.

Mill at Bellaire is Being Worked by Officials and Green Hands—Colored Men Imported but no Trouble Has Occurred—Long Expected Appeal for Financial Support Made Monday—Shaffer Interviewed—McKeesport Mills Intirely Closed—Chicago and Joliet Working.

Pittsburg, Aug. 12.—So far it appears that the Steel trust and the Amalgamated Association have about broken even. The trust expected that fewer men would strike than did strike, and President Shaffer today said the local strike situation is satisfactory. He also reports the mills at McKeesport entirely closed.

Pittsburg, Aug. 12.—It now seems certain that none of the Carnegie mills will be involved in the Amalgamated struggle. Mr. Shaffer will not discuss the disobedience of the Amalgamated men of the Illinois Steel works, who refused to go out. According to the Amalgamated figures 15,900 men of the Amalgamated went out this morning. At the National Steel Works, New Castle, Pa., 2,000; Mingo Junction, Ohio, 1,500; Steubenville, 2,000; Bellaire 900; National Tube Works, McKeesport, 1,500; Riverview, Wheeling, 6000; Republic Works, Pittsburg, 1,500; Elkhart Rolling Mills 500. At the steel trust plants in Chicago and Joliet all the men are at work today and no trouble has occurred.

Pittsburg, Aug. 12.—A significant letter was received by Secretary Williams, of the Amalgamated Association, from the Sheet Metal Workers' International at Sheet Metal Workers' International at Baltimore, and it conveys the information that the sheet metal workers will not work tin or sheets made by non-union men. This organization is one of the strongest in the world and includes all craftsmen who make or work articles of tin in every form.

Pittsburg, Aug. 12.—The long expected appeal of the Amalgamated Association to labor unions and the general public for financial support was made today. Secretary Williams believes the appeal will meet with ready response.

Bellaire, O., Aug. 12.—The Amalgamated took in 250 men at the Bellaire steel works Sunday. The mill is being worked by officials and green hands today, who are merrily running the machinery and making a bluff at rolling steel. The union men surrounded the night force this morning but no violence was used. Twenty-five colored men who were brought in are working. They will be boarded inside the mill which is directly surrounded by a 12 foot board fence. The management say they will operate the mill at any cost.

McKeesport, Pa., Aug. 12.—The Boston Iron and Steel mill, an auxiliary of the National Tube works is idle, not a man reporting for work this morning. The tube works are operating as usual.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—All of the south Chicago mills of the steel corporation are working as usual this morning. Vice President Davis of the Amalgamated Association is the only man who failed to put in an appearance for work. There are no indications of trouble.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 12.—The steel trust strike here is absolutely unchanged. Only about 400 members of the Amalgamated Association work in the Newburg mills. The Crescent tin plate plant where those were employed has been shut down some time and there are no present indications of starting it up.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 12.—The Amalgamated Association men went to work as usual at Bay View this morning. In yesterday's meeting when it was voted not to strike it was said that in case a second order of a peremptory character were received from Shaffer, the men would go out, but no vote was taken on this and it is now practically certain that they will remain at work regardless of Shaffer's action.

Pittsburg, Aug. 12.—"The local strike situation as far as concerns the action of the Amalgamated men is entirely satisfactory. The reports from local points indicate our men are intensely loyal. I regret, however, that there are men who are content to labor in the slave pens of the trusts, when an opportunity was offered them to be free men."

This is the statement of T. J. Shaffer today concerning the strike situation. When asked what he thought of the western situation Mr. Shaffer replied: "I have no official information concerning the western plants. Until I receive information from our own officials I will of course decline to discuss the situation."

Mr. Shaffer was informed of a rumor that Vice President W. C. Davis of the Amalgamated association had accepted a superintendency under the trust. He said he had not heard of it. "Word from McKeesport today indicates the mills there are entirely closed. This is highly satisfactory," Mr. Shaffer went on: "Summing the situation up we have no reason to be discouraged this morning. Later in the week there may be more developments."

Mr. Shaffer was asked if he would call out any of the allied organizations to aid the Amalgamated in its strike. His reply to this question was emphatic: "All action along these lines must be entirely voluntary. I will call out no organization nor ask that sort of sympathetic assistance without the consent and concurrent action of the organizations executive head. As an instance I consider John Mitchell fully capable of directing the United Mine Workers. What he does in any respect is undoubtedly wise."

Mr. Shaffer is bright and cheerful today. He is alert and self-confident, but has an appearance of care.

"Yesterday I rested at my home and saw nobody," he explained, "I feel better for it in consequence today."

Among President Shaffer's early callers was Thomas G. Johnston, owner of the Sheffield Iron and Steel works of Sheffield, Ala. Mr. Johnston recently completed a new hoop mill at Sheffield and he wants fifty skilled laborers. His plant is strictly union and independent.

Accompanied by John Pierce, Mr. Johnston made a tour of the city this morning and secured nearly all the skilled men he needed from the ranks of the strikers.

ONLY NON-UNION MEN Will be Employed in All the Mills of the Trust.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 12.—"Notice—This mill will be started non-union Monday morning."

These were the words selected by the United Steel corporation to announce to its employees the Amalgamated Association and the world that it no longer operates any union plants. When the general strike order went into effect Saturday evening the trust considered unionism as being from its mills. It posted notices to that effect, reading as above.

The trust is not ready to arbitrate. It turned down a proposition to that effect at noon. The proposal came from two Pittsburg manufacturers, who had the Amalgamated Association agree to submit to it.

When the whistles blew Saturday afternoon the great extension of idleness ordered by President Shaffer went into effect.

Secretary Williams of the Amalgamated, says 35,000 skilled union men will quit work, throwing out 105,000, and making the number of idle steel workers 140,000.

THOUSANDS OF CHINESE DROWN.

ONE CITY IN CHINA COMPLETELY INUNDATED.

PIRATES HAVE RESUMED WORK.

Chinese Shipping Men and Forming a Combine—Men Suffocated—News From the Orient.

Tacoma Wash., Aug. 12.—The steamship Idzumi Maru brings news from Hong Kong of the drowning of thousands of Chinese in Kwang Si province by a sudden rise of several rivers. The city of Fuh Shan, where large iron works are located and which has been called the "Birmingham of China," is completely inundated.

Many embankments have given way causing floods to overflow great stretches of crops.

Ten Chinese workers were suffocated while engaged in repairing the United States steamer Arctura, employed in the Philippine service at the Hong Kong docks. One of the coolie attendants dropped a lighted candle which apparently ignited some oily waste causing a quick fire which suffocated the Chinese before they could get out of the shaft tunnel of the steamer in which they were working. The court concluded that death was caused accidentally.

Pirates have resumed business at Canton, Shanghai and Amoy. Many passenger boats are being raided.

Chinese shipping men are forming a combine with a capital of half a million dollars to control the stevedoring business of Manila. The syndicate comprises ten men and the capital will be subscribed in Canton.

SIGNOR CRISPI CALLED HOME

ITALY'S NOTED STATESMAN DIED SUNDAY EVENING.

TO BE GREAT STATE FUNERAL.

It is Reported that the Affairs of the Deceased Are in the Greatest Confusion—King Notified.

Rome, Aug. 12.—Owing to the lateness of the hour at which Signor Crispi died last evening, Cardinal Rampelli did not notify the Pope until this morning. When he heard of the ex-premier's death his holiness exclaimed "Providence" evidently has really decreed that I be last of my generation to go. With Crispi was a good fighter. The Pope then knelt in prayer for the soul of his departed old enemy.

Naples, Aug. 12.—At 7.40 Sunday evening Signor Crispi passed away. He was surrounded by the members of his family and several intimates. The news was immediately telegraphed to King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helen. The body will be conveyed by steamer to Palermo, where the municipal authorities will prepare for a great public funeral. It is reported that the affairs of the deceased are in the greatest confusion, and that Signora Crispi will have to depend solely upon the proceeds of the sale of the immovables.

ROBBERS

HELD UP FIVE MEN AND ESCAPED WITH $3000.

Tied the Men to a Trolley Car With Wire and Blew the Safe With Dynamite.

A busy Park, N. J., Aug. 12.—Four masked robbers held up five men this morning, blew open the safe at the car barn of the Atlantic coast electric railroad and escaped with $3,000. Four drivers were taking cars into the bath at Allentown when the thieves appeared. The drivers were covered by revolvers, seized and together with the night watchman were bound to a trolley car with wire. The safe was blown with dynamite. It was some time before the plight of the employees was discovered.

WESSELS

Who Was Reported Shot by Order of General Dewet is Alive—Dewet Exonerated.

Lund, Aug. 12.—An official dispatch received today from Pretoria, states that Andries Wessels, the Dutch peace envoy, who was reported several months ago as having been shot by order of General Dewet, is still alive. The dispatch follows: "Peace Envoy Andries Wessels, said to have been shot, has been released by the columns."

Wessels, according to press dispatches, was peremptorily executed by Dewet when he went to the Boer aid with peace overtures. The act was regarded as one of extreme cruelty on the part of the Boer leader. Dewet is now officially exonerated.

Friends and medical advisers are now urging retirement and seclusion for him. Should Sampson fail to appear at the trial, the whole case may be abandoned and no satisfactory settlement possible without him as a witness.

OHIO MOTHER SHOT DAUGHTER

TRIED TO KILL SON AND THEN COMMITTED SUICIDE.

WAS CRAZED BY LONG ILLNESS.

Mrs. Pringle is Author of a Tragedy at Cleveland—She Misconstrued Telegram.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 12.—While crazed by illness Mrs. Robert Pringle, wife of a lake captain on Sunday shot her little daughter, attempted to shoot her eleven year old son, and inflicted a fatal wound upon herself. The little girl will probably recover, but the mother who committed the fearful deed died.

The mother and daughter were found by neighbors lying on the same bed, bleeding and moaning. The mother was conscious but could give no coherent account of the cause of the deed. The little girl was also partially conscious, but could not explain her mother's mad act. The bed on which they were lying was smoldering and smoking and the firing had been done at such short range that the clothing had been ignited. The mother had evidently fired three shots at the little girl. Two took effect. The third was found imbedded in the wall. One shot was turned on herself. It took fatal effect in the stomach.

The unfortunate mental condition that caused the dreadful act was brought on by a long illness, but was aggravated by the misinterpretation of a telegram which Mrs. Pringle received Saturday afternoon. She had been looking forward to a visit from her sister, Mrs. Zanger of Detroit. She went to the boat landing on Saturday to meet her sister, but the latter did not come. She brooded over the disappointment and when she arrived home she got the telegram. She opened the message and read it as saying that the anxiously expected relative could not come at all. In fact, the message stated that Mrs. Zanger would reach Cleveland on Sunday. To the misreading of the dispatch may be traced the fearful deed that was committed by Mrs. Pringle.

The shooting was done about 5:30 o'clock. About the same time Mrs. Zanger, the sister of the unfortunate woman, arrived by boat from Detroit. She took a car at once for the home of Mrs. Pringle. She arrived just as the dying woman was being carried from the house to be conveyed to the hospital.

PARENTS

Failed to Carry Out Their Contract and the Marriage Engagement Was Broken.

New York, Aug. 12.—Angie Coleman, a girl of 16, says that Robert K. Kumpner, a Brooklyn merchant, jilted her, and sues him for $5,000 damages for breach of promise. Robert makes a novel defense.

When the wedding, which was set for a few weeks ago, was not celebrated, an explanation was made that it had been postponed for family reasons, but the real reason is explained by the filing of the suit.

Mr. Kumpner has sought advice from the law firm of House, Grossman & Vorhaus. The engagement to Miss Coleman is not denied. Kumpner says he promised to marry, but when he came to look up his assets he discovered that his income was not sufficient to permit him to take so important a step. He says his failure to marry Miss Coleman is due to his inability to properly support and maintain a wife.

His parents and Angie's parents are both in financial straits and they sympathize with him. Then the girl's mother, Mrs. Coleman, says she will not let her daughter marry a man who has jilted her. She says she will not let her daughter marry a man who has jilted her.

The married man always gets his object in mind when a virgin is introduced.

HELPLESSLY

Steamer Drifted Down the River and Two Hundred Passengers Were Badly Frightened.

New York, Aug. 2.—For three hours this morning the steamboat Ulster, of the Saugerties and New York steamboat line, drifted helplessly down the Hudson, her whistle shrieking for assistance and a couple of hundred passengers in a frightened condition. The trouble was caused by a breakdown of the boat's engines, which left her helpless. The steamboat Ontario, of the Catskill line finally went to the Ulster's relief and the passengers were transferred and taken to New York. The Ulster was left in the river. It is learned here that she has been safely towed into Newburg.

WAR

Between Austria and Italy is Possible. Rome Message Predicts Trouble. The Dispatch.

Vienna, Aug. 12.—Die Information today gives prominence to a message from Rome predicting a war between Austria and Italy. The message says: "They are surely drifting into a state where hostilities on either side are inevitable. Both have been showing unusual military activity on either side of the frontier, and both are setting their Adriatic fleets in order."

"Italy counts upon the Southern Austrian provinces of Gorizia, Istria and Dalmatia, whose people are Italians."

"Deputations from these provinces, while visiting Rome recently on the anniversary of the death of King Humbert, stoned the Austrian embassy."

DIVERS

Resumed Work of Searching for Rest of Stolen Gold—Rumor will Not Down.

San Francisco, Aug. 12.—Divers today resumed the work of searching for the remainder of the gold bullion stolen from the Selby smelter by John Winters. It is now said that Winters' motive for stealing the bullion is retaliation for the alleged use by the smelter company of an appliance invented by him for which he has not been rewarded. The report that he was well rewarded for revealing the hiding place of the treasure, will not down, and it is not absolutely denied by either the smelter officials or detectives.

COSHOCKTON

WILL NOT HAVE TROLLEY CARS THIS YEAR.

Project to Connect Town With Newark Slumbering—The Canton-Akron Road is Building.

The hum of the trolley will not this year be heard on the streets of Coshocton. The season is far advanced, and no tangible efforts have been made by any of the three companies that have been mentioned in connection with the city to begin the work of construction.

The fact is, says the Coshocton Age, the situation is somewhat complicated. The Zanesville, Adamsville and Coshocton has been given all it has asked in the city and county, but no move of any kind has yet been made to begin work. Zanesville and Muskingum county have treated it kindly but with the same result.

Whether the project will be taken up next year and rushed to completion remains to be seen, the plans of the company being at present securely locked in the breasts of the promoters.

The Newark, Zanesville & Coshocton is doing nothing. It has a franchise in Coshocton, Muskingum and Licking counties, and has rights in Coshocton, Newark and other towns. The condition at Zanesville was for a time so complicated that nothing could be learned of the company's prospects.

Colonel Boone, who begins railroads at nowhere and ends them in the same place, was active in securing the best concessions in Zanesville, but the Newark line would not be put down and worked hard for recognition. The county commissioners finally took the matter in hand and prospects brightened. But nothing will be done on construction this year if it is not commenced very soon.

The project upon which so many people depended, the extension of the Canton & Akron from Canton through Canal Dover to Uhrichsville, Newcomerstown and Coshocton will not materialize this year. Work on the road from Canton to Akron is being pushed with all possible speed and steel is being laid, but it is stated that nothing will be done south of Canton this year.

HOUSE DECORATION.

Suggestive Notes on Interior Work, Furniture and Pictures.

The dining room in a house near New York has had the walls divided into three portions by a chair rail, about two and a half feet from the floor, and by a shelf, some two feet below the ceiling. The woodwork is all finished in ivory enamel. The upper and lower portions of the wall have been hung with forest green burlap, against which a choice collection of quaint steins and other picturesque pottery, artistically arranged upon the shelf, stands out in bold relief.

The middle part of the wall has been hung with dull red burlap, and upon this part the owner has hung oil paintings in broad, flat gilt frames, spacing at intervals to suit his fancy. The furniture, of a rather quaint and picturesque type, is of a forest green oak, the chairs being thinly upholstered in velvet. On one side of the room is a great fireplace of rough red brick laid in green mortar, running up to the shelf molding under the frieze, which breaks round the chimney breast to form a mantel. On either side of the fireplace opening are projected seats, plain and simple in their fashioning, that are heaped high with gay cushions and afford a comfortable resting place, says The Art Interchange, in which occur the following, among other, suggestive notes:

"Only maple is a delightful wood, particularly when dull finished. Like mahogany, it requires some expanse of surface to show its grain satisfactorily and appears to better advantage in large pieces of furniture. This is true of birdseye maple also. Both need but little more than a smooth, fine heading to relieve the eye. Chestnut and ash and oak, on the contrary, are monotonous in grain. To get variety the cabinet maker has recourse to spindle work, elaborately turned legs and metal work. Cherry is a cheap, much depreciated wood, but very pretty furniture can be found made from it notwithstanding."

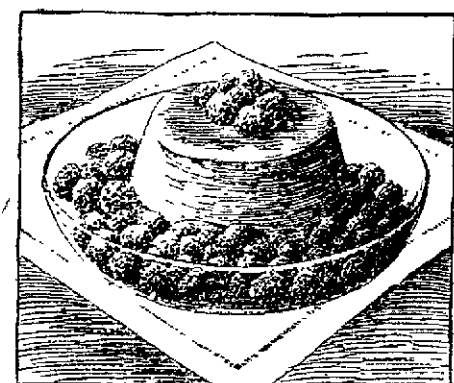

When a person possesses a large number of small pictures, like photographs or etchings, if they are the same size or of sizes which can be made to combine it is better to frame three or four of them together, with a single mat cut to the various sized openings. When they are of different sizes which do not arrange themselves, obviously it is better to follow the rule of "make up" in magazines of growing toward the right—that is, putting the larger and darker ones on the right hand side of the frame, so as to produce a sort of climax, as the eye naturally travels in that direction.

The frame should be of the small, round oak molding, only large enough to hold the glass, and the mats, three inches outside the photographs and two between, should be a yellow olive or cream.

A DAINTY DISH.

A Good Fruit Accompaniment For a Midday Lunch.

For the midday lunch on a hot day, this dish is a dainty accompaniment. Pick one-half box berries carefully over and press through a sieve and add to

RED RASPBERRY TRIPLE.

The pulp one cup of sugar, juice of one-half lemon and cook until very thick. Remove from the fire and add by spoonfuls to the whites of four eggs beaten stiff and dry, beating slowly all the time the berry is being added. Then pour into a buttered mold and bake in a moderate oven until when touched with the finger it does not adhere. Let it become cold, unmold in a pretty glass dish and surround with the remainder of the fruit.

Plain cream is best to serve with this, but it is equally excellent without. The success of this delicate article is cooking the fruit thoroughly and having the eggs beaten to the right consistency. A good test for the latter is when the beaten white can be heaped into a pointed mound without losing shape and forming on the apex what the bakers call a "dog ear."—Household.

Fashion Echoes.

Linen and batiste were never more popular in summer dress.

The smart pocket handkerchief has a touch of color in one corner.

The raglan made of thinnest alpaca or cheviot is a useful addition to the summer wardrobe.

Hats showing wide brims are unusually popular for summer wear. This style of hat is trimmed very low save at the left side.

The new hat known as the "shirt waist hat" is merely a low crowned sailor of either rough or smooth straw trimmed with a handkerchief drapery of Persian silk or satin.

Soft silks in pale colors make some of the most attractive gowns for summer afternoon wear. A pretty model in pale green shows wide bands of white lace insertion striping the skirt in vertical lines.

Mitts gain little favor usually in spite of the fact that they are part of the elbow sleeve fashion so modish just now.

Low cut calfskin slippers tied with broad black ribbon are the swaggiest thing for wear with white pique and duck morning dress.

Springfield—President McKinley has accepted an invitation to be present at the dedication of the Methodist home for Aged at Yellow Springs. He will deliver an address. The exact date for the dedication has not been set.

Wooster—John Leiner, aged son of County Commissioner Leiner, while delirious from typhoid fever, took a drink from a bottle containing a bottle of acid. He died in less than five minutes.

Athens—A perfectly developed girl babe was found on a sand bar along the Hocking river by William Jordan. It had been there several days. Death evidently had resulted from neglect and exposure.

Columbus—Richard Welsh, aged 13, residing at 491 West Rich street, fell from a Hocking Valley freight train while stealing a ride. His leg was cut off at the shoulder. He will die.

Columbus—Albert D. Robbins, colored, aged 18 years, was drowned while bathing in the Scioto river. His home was at 109 Young street.

Springfield—Captain R. P. Hobson of Merrimac fame, has accepted an invitation to be present at the dedication of the new Y. M. C. A. building here on Tuesday, September 17.

Warren—Fire Sunday evening destroyed the barns, granary sheds and contents of George Kohler, a farmer living north of town. Loss $3,000; partly insured. A number of chickens caught fire and while still burning ran into the farm house and set fire to a pile of rags. The house was only saved by hard work on the part of the neighbors and spectators.

Wooster—The wife of a well-known Amish citizen has been sued for $2,500 damages for alienating the affections of another woman's husband. The woman who brought suit is Mrs. Mary Lavina Williams. The young woman against whom the petition is directed is Mrs. Mary Jane Buch, wife of wealthy Simon E. Buch. Mrs. Williams alleges that Mrs. Buch wickedly, willfully and maliciously "old Williams" stories that made him desert his wife and 5 minor children; that she did so to deprive Mrs. Williams of the comfort and companionship of her husband by making love to him. She says also that Mrs. Buch on many occasions went buggy riding with Williams and on one occasion went to Columbus on an excursion with him. Mrs. Buch is also charged with harboring Williams at the present time.

Tiffin—Captain John W. Chamberlain, a banker and one of the trustees of the Masonic Home at Springfield died Sunday, aged 65 years.

Marion—A midnight blaze in "The Fair" dry goods store, caused $50,000 damage. Fire walls saved adjoining buildings. It is supposed that the blaze originated from an electric light wire. The heat and water combined caused the crumbling of the wall of the three-story Barran block adjoining "The Fair" on the north and may necessitate its being rebuilt.

Encke's Comet.

Geneva, N. Y., Aug. 12.—Encke's comet was observed by Dr. William R. Brooks at Smith's observatory. The comet is in constellation Gemini, in the eastern morning sky. The comet is moving in a southeasterly direction and approaching the sun. It is increasing in brightness but is not visible without a telescope.

THE SMART WOMAN.

Her Secret Lies Not in Clothes, but in Carriage.

Good carriage is essential to style. No matter what a woman wears, if she does not carry herself properly and gracefully her appearance is spoiled, but let her learn to stand, walk and breathe properly, and the simplest costume has an air of richness and smartness. There is no skirt made that will appear stylish on the woman who stands with the abdomen protruding, and the smartest short waists become a mockery over the hollow chest. These, then, are two of the most common faults in the carriage of the average woman, both the result of ignorance or carelessness, which can only be overcome by regular systematic exercise.

To learn to walk and to stand correctly are duties every woman owes to herself, and they should form a part of every girl's early training, for a careless habit once formed is hard to break. Stand well and walk well, and the rest will follow, says The New Idea Woman's Magazine, which discourses of the "smart" girl as follows:

"The 'smart' girl takes herself seriously, as though she were a poet, and starts out with the determination to perfect herself, body and clothes. Here, then, is her secret. She knows how to stand correctly, and she has found out that no woman who poises her body properly at the waist line can ever appear commonplace, no matter how simple her attire."

The minute a woman stands lightly on her feet, with knees straight, chest well out, stomach flat, shoulders drawn down and the body from waist up, tilting ever so lightly forward, she has acquired at once a certain smartness of effect that no amount of beauty or fine clothes could give. A woman simply can't stand correctly and look slovenly. The "smart" girl is never round shouldered or hollow chested, and, by standing properly, she breathes properly. Every full, deep breath she draws strengthens the muscles of her sides and abdomen. She is bound not to grow into a fat, ungainly woman, who can never catch her breath or a train, for a proper poise of the body means good digestion and good health.

It is probably going too far to say that a girl sets about being "smart" in order to be healthy, but it is absolutely true that she is quite likely to grow stronger because of her correct way of carrying her body.

How many women sink into a little heap the minute they sit down—shoulders drooping, chest sunken, the whole weight of the body thrown on the end of the spine. The "smart" girl sits in the same erect, alert way that she stands, and if she wishes to rest she leans back against her shoulders and not the middle of her back. In bending, whether at a desk or over a dishpan or at a dinner table, she bends from her waist, not from her shoulders, and she not only looks well, but avoids fatigue and the actual injuries that come from any strain or misplaced muscles.

Bugs and Bugs.

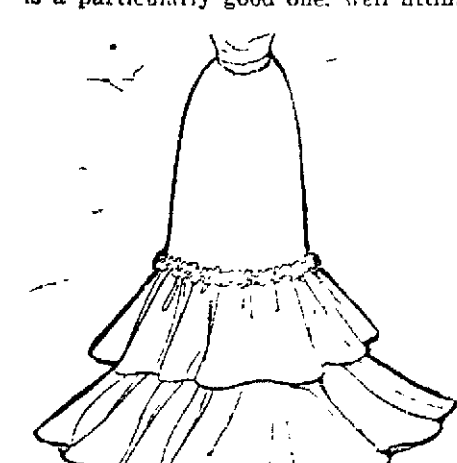

The wholesale slaughter of the invincible little ladybugs, under the impression that they are buffalo bugs, moves me to try to describe the latter so plainly that no one who reads this need make the mistake again, says a Good Housekeeping correspondent. The buffalo bug in the beetle stage is about an eighth of an inch long, much smaller and flatter than its innocent cousin. It is covered with minute black and white scales, giving it the mottled look of old fashioned chinchilla worsted, and has a narrow stripe of red down the middle of the back only. It likes the light, so you will often find it on the window casings, but in the summer it will leave the house for the garden. The tiny, shining, black carpet beetle is a little longer and narrower than the buffalo bug and an easy prey on account of its color.

THE LADY OF LYNN

By SIR WALTER BESANT

CHAPTER III.
GREAT NEWS FOR LYNN.

It was the evening of the day before I was to sail. Captain Crowle and I were walking through the narrow street they call State lane into the great market place, where stands the Crown inn. The room appropriated to the Society of Lynn, which met every evening all the year round, was that on the ground floor looking upon the market place.

The society, or club, which is never dissolved, consists of the nobles, or better sort of the town, the vicar of St. Margaret's, the curate of St. Nicholas', the master of the school, my own father, Captain Crowle and other retired captains, the doctor, some of the more substantial merchants, with the mayor, some of the aldermen, the town clerk and a justice of the peace or two. This evening most of these gentlemen were already present.

Captain Crowle saluted the company and took his seat at the head of the table. "Gentlemen," he said, "I wish you all a pleasant evening. I have brought with me my young friend, Jack Pentecost, who you all know Jack, the worthy son of his worthy father. He will take a glass with us. Sit down beside me, Jack."

"With the permission of the society," I said.

Most of the gentlemen had already before them their pipes and their tobacco. Some had ordered their drink—a pint of port for one, a Brown George full of old ale for another, a flask of canary for a third, and so on. But the captain, looking round the room, beckoned to the girl who waited "Jenny," he said, "nobody calls for anything tonight except myself. Gentlemen, I must be a devil or half a dozen bowls. Tell your mistress, Jenny, a bowl of the biggest and the strongest and the sweetest. Gentlemen, you will drink with me to the next voyage of the Lady of Lynn."

But then a thing happened. News came which drove all thoughts of the Lady of Lynn out of everybody's mind. That toast was forgotten.

The news was brought by the doctor, who was the last to arrive.

"Doctor Worship was a person who habitually carried himself with dignity."

"Gentlemen," the doctor laid his hat upon the table and his cane beside it. Then he took his chair, adjusted his wig, put on his spectacles, and then, laying his hand upon the arms of the chair, he once more looked around the room, and all this in the most important, dignified, provoking, interesting manner possible. "Gentlemen, I have news for you."

Captain Crowle made answer, speaking in the name of the society. "Sir, we await your pleasure."

"My news, gentlemen, is of a startling character. I will epitomize or abbreviate it. In a word, therefore, we are all about to become rich. All you who have houses or property in this town, all who are concerned in the trade of the town, all who direct the industries of the people or take care of the health of the residents, will become, I say, rich."

The doctor pulled out a pocketbook from which he extracted a letter. "I have received," he went on, "a letter from a townsman, the young man named Samuel Semple—Samuel Semple," he repeated, with emphasis, because a look of disappointment fell upon every face.

"Sam Semple," growled the captain. "Once I broke my stick across his back." He did not, however, explain why he had done so. "I wish I had broken two. What has Sam Semple to do with the prosperity of the town?"

"Mr. Sam Semple," the doctor continued, with emphasis on the prefix, to which indeed the poet was not entitled in his native town, "doth not ask for help. He is not starving; he is prosperous; he has gained the friendship or the patronage of certain persons of quality. This is the reward of genius. Let us forget that he was the son of a custom house servant, and let us admit that he proved unequal to the duties, for which he was unfitted, of a clerk. He has now risen. We will welcome one whose name will in the future add lustre to our town."

The vicar shook his head. "Trash," he murmured. "Trash!"

"Well, gentlemen, I will proceed to read the letter."

He unfolded it and began with a sonorous buzz.

"Honoured sir," He repeated the words, "Honoured sir. The letter, gentlemen, is addressed to myself—ahem, to myself. I have recently heard of a discovery which will probably affect in a manner so vital the interests of my beloved native town that I feel it my duty to communicate the fact to you without delay. I do so to you rather than to my esteemed patron, the worshipful the mayor, once my master, or to Captain Crowle or to any of those who subscribed for my volume of miscellany poems, because the matter especially and peculiarly concerns yourself as a physician and as the fortunate owner of the spring or well which is the subject of the discovery." The subject of the discovery, gentlemen. My well—mine. He went on, "You are aware as a master in the science of medicine that the curative properties of various spas or springs in the country—the names of Bath, Tunbridge Wells and Epsom are familiar to you; so doubtless are those of Hampstead and St. Chads, nearer London. It now appears that a certain learned physician, having reason to believe that similar waters exist, as yet unsuspected, at King's Lynn, has procured a jar of the water from your own well—that in your garden—my well, gentlemen, in my own garden—and, having subjected it to a rigorous examination, has discovered that it contains to a much higher degree than any other well hitherto known to exist in this country qualities or ingredients held in solution which make this water sovereign for the cure of rheumatism, asthma, gout and all disorders due to ill humors or vapors, concerning which I am not competent so much as to speak to one of your learning and skill."

"This discovery hath already been announced in the public journals. I send you an extract containing the news." I read this extract, gentlemen.

"It was a slip of printed paper cut from one of the journals of London: 'It has been discovered that at King's Lynn, in the county of Norfolk, there exists a deep well of clear water whose properties, hitherto undiscovered, form a sovereign specific for rheumatism and many similar disorders. Our physicians have already begun to recommend the place as a spa, and it is understood that some have already resolved upon betaking themselves to this newly discovered cure. The distance from London is no greater than that of Bath. The roads, it is true, are not so good, but at Cambridge it is possible for those who do not travel in their own carriages to proceed by way of barge or tilt boat down the Cam and the Ouse a distance of only 40 miles, which in the summer should prove a pleasant journey.'

"So far," the doctor informed us, "for the printed intelligence. I now proceed to finish the letter. 'Among others, my patron, the right honorable the Earl of Fyningdale, has been recommended by his physician to try the newly discovered waters of Lynn as a preventive of gout. He is a gentleman of the highest rank, fashion and wealth, who honors me with his confidence. It is possible that he may even allow me to accompany him on his journey. Should he do so I shall look forward to the honor of paying my respects to my former patron. He tells me that other persons of distinction are also going to the same place, with the same object, during the coming summer.'

"You hear, gentlemen?" said the doctor, looking round. "What did I say? Wealth for all—for all! So, let me continue. 'Sir, I would with the greatest submission venture to point out the importance of this event to the town. The nobility and gentry of the neighborhood should be immediately made acquainted with this great discovery. It may be expected that there will be such a concourse flocking to Lynn as will bring an accession of wealth as well as fame to the borough of which I am a humble native. I would also submit that the visitors should find Lynn provided with the amusements necessary for a spa. I mean music, the assembly, a pumproom, a garden, the ball and the masquerade and the card-room, clean lodgings, good wine and fish, flesh and fowl in abundance. I humbly ask forgiveness for these suggestions, and I have the honor to recommend, honored sir, your most obedient humble servant, with my grateful service to all the gentlemen who subscribe to my verses and thereby provided me with a ladder up which to rise.'"

"SAMUEL SEMPLE."

At this moment the bowl of punch was brought in and placed before the captain, with a tray of glasses. The doctor folded his letter, replaced it in his pocketbook and took off his spectacles.

"Gentlemen, you have heard my news. Captain Crowle, may I request that you permit the society to drink with me to the prosperity of the spa—the prosperity of the spa—the spa of Lynn?"

"Let us drink it," said the captain, "to the newly discovered spa. But this Samuel, the name sticks."

"I recall one day when Molly and I

"We must have a committee to prepare for the accommodation of the visitors."

"We must put up a pumproom."

"We must engage a dipper."

"We must make walks across the fields."

"There must be an assembly, with music and dancing."

"There must be a cardroom."

"There must be a long room for those who wish to walk about and to converse, with an orchestra."

"I will put up the pumproom," said the doctor, "in my garden over the well."

The captain looked on meanwhile, whispering in my ear from time to time. "Samuel is a liar," he said. "I know him to be a liar. Yet why should he lie about a thing of so much importance? If he tells the truth, Jack—I know not, I misdoubt the fellow, yet again he may tell the truth. And why should he lie, I say? Then one knows not—among the company we may find a husband for the girl."

"It only remains," said the doctor, "that I myself should submit the water of my well to an examination." He did not think it necessary to inform the company that he had received from Samuel Semple an analysis of the water stating the ingredients and their proportions as made by the anonymous physician of London. "Should it prove, of which I have little doubt, that the water is such as has been described by my learned brother in medicine, I shall inform you of the fact."

It was a curious coincidence, though the committee of reception were not informed of the fact, that the doctor's analysis exactly agreed with that sent to him.

It was a memorable evening. For my own part, I know not why, during the reading of the letter my heart sank lower and lower. It was the foreboding of evil. Perhaps it was caused by my knowledge of Samuel, of whom I will speak presently. Perhaps it was the thought of seeing the girl whom I loved, while yet I had no hope of winning her, carried off by some sprig of quality who would teach her to despise her homely friends, the master maids, young and old. I know not the reason. But it was a foreboding of evil, and it was with a heavy heart that I repaired to the quay and rowed myself back to the ship in the moonlight.

They were going to drink to the next voyage of the Lady of Lynn. Why, the lady herself, not her ship, was about to embark on a voyage more perilous, more disastrous, than that which awaited any of her ships. Cruel as it is the ocean, I would rather trust myself and her to the mercies of the bay of Biscay at its wildest than to the tenderness of the crew who were to take charge of that innocent and ignorant lady.

CHAPTER IV.
MOLLY AND I.

It pleases me to recall the tall form of my father, his bent shoulders, his wig, for the most part awry; his round spectacles, his thin face. In school he was a figure of fear, always terrible, wielding the rod of office with justice, rhamnathine and demanding, with that unrelenting alternative, things impossible in grammar. In school hours he was a very Jupiter, a thundering Jupiter. Our school was an ancient hall, with an open timber roof, in which his voice rolled and echoed backward and forward.

As to Molly, she had the misfortune to lose her father in infancy. He was carried off, I believe, by smallpox. He was a shipowner and general merchant of the town and was commonly reputed to be a man of considerable means. At his death he bequeathed the care of his widow and his child to his old servant, Captain John Crowle, who had been in the service of the house since he was apprenticed as a boy. He directed further that Captain Crowle should conduct the business for the child, who by his will was to inherit the whole of his fortune, whatever that might prove to be, on coming of age after subtracting certain settlements for his widow.

It was most fortunate for the child that her guardian was the most honest person in the world. He was a bachelor; he was bound by ties of gratitude to the house which he had served; he had nothing to do and nothing to think about except the welfare of the child. At 19 Molly was a fine, tall girl, as strong as any man, her arms stout and muscular, like mine; her face rosy and ruddy with the bloom of health, her eyes blue and neither too large nor too small, but fearless; her head and face large, her hair fair and blowing about her head with loose curls, her figure full, her neck as white as snow, her hands large rather than small, by reason of the rowing and the handling of the ropes, and by no means white. Her features were regular and straight, her mouth not too small, but to my eyes the most beautiful mouth in the world, the lips full and always ready for a smile, the teeth white and regular; in a word, to me at least, as fine a woman—not of the delicate and dainty kind, but strong, tall and full of figure—as one may wish for. As to her disposition, she was the most tender, affectionate, sweet soul that could be imagined. She was always thinking of something to please those who loved her. She spared her mother and worked for her guardian. She was always working at something. She was always happy. She was always singing. And never, until the captain told her, did she have the least suspicion that she was richer than all her friends and neighbors—nay, than the whole town of Lynn, with its merchants and shippers and traders all together.

I recall one day when Molly and I were children. It was in the month of December in the afternoon and close upon sunset. The little maid was about 8, and I was 10. We were together as usual. We had been on the river, but it was cold, and so we came ashore and were walking hand in hand along the street they call Pudding lane, which leads from the Common Stath yard to the market place. In this lane there stands a sailors' tippling house, which, I dare say, in all respects such a house as sailors desire, provided and furnished according to their wants and wishes. As we passed, the place being already lit up with two or three candles in sconces, the door being wide open and the mingled noise of fiddle, voices and feet announcing the assemblage of company, Molly pulled me by the hand and stopped to look in. The scene was what I have already indicated. The revelry of the evening had set in. Everybody was drinking. One was dancing. The fiddler was playing lustily.

We should have looked on for a minute and left them. But one of the sailors recognized Molly. Springing to his feet, he made a respectful leg and saluted the child. "Mate," he cried, "ts our owner! The little lady owns the barker! What shall we do for her?" Then they all sprang to their feet with a huzza for the owner and another for the ship, and if you will believe it, their rough to'ssle hands in half a minute had the child on the table in a chair like a queen. She sat with great dignity, understanding in some way that these men were in her own service and that they designed no harm or affront to her, but only to do her honor. Therefore she was not in any fear and smiled graciously. For my own part, I followed and stood at the table, thinking that perhaps these fellows were proposing some piratical abduction and resolving miracles of valor if necessary.

Then they made offerings. One man pulled a great handkerchief from his neck and laid it in her lap, and another juggled a box of sweets from his pocket. It came from Lisbon, but was made, I believe, in Morocco by the Moors. A third had a gold ring on his finger—everybody knows the extravagancies of sailors—which he drew off and placed in her hand. Another offered a glass of punch. The little maid did what she had so often seen the captain do. She looked round and said, "Your good health; all the company," and put her lips to the glass, which she then returned. And another offered to dance, and the fiddler drew his bow across the catgut. It is a sound which inclines the heart to beat and the feet to move whenever a sailor hears it.

"I have often seen you dance," said Molly. "Let the fiddler play, and you shall see me dance."

I never thought she would have had so much spirit, for, you see, I had taught her to dance the hornpipe. Every boy in a seaport town can dance the hornpipe. We used to make music out of a piece of thin paper laid over a tortoise shell comb—it must be a comb of wide teeth, and none of them must be broken—and with this instead of a fiddle we would dance in the garden or in the parlour. But to stand up before a whole company of sailors! Who would have thought it? However, she jumped up and on the table performed her dance with great seriousness and so gracefully that they were all enchanted. They stood around, their mouths open, a broad grin on every face. The women, neglected, huddled together in a corner and were quite silent.

When she had finished, she gathered up her gifts—the silk handkerchief—it came from Calicut—the sweets from Morocco, the gold ring from I know not where. "Put me down, if you please," she said. So one of them gently lifted her to the ground. "I thank you all," she courted very prettily. "I wish you good night and when you set sail again a good voyage."

RUBBER GLOVES

And Shoes in Demand as Whole Block of Houses Charged With Electricity—Unexplained.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 12.—In two business blocks near the center of the town of Abington, which seem to be charged with electricity, strange occurrences have taken place in 48 hours. Ever since the last electrical storm there have been slight disturbances, but no serious results were noticeable until within a few days ago.

First, the occupants of the bank building noticed that lightning seemed to play at intervals during the day. Treasurer G. A. Beal of the Abington Savings Bank, was at work on his books Friday when a huge ball of fire darted from the globe suspended from the ceiling. The light radiated like the spokes of a wheel, accompanied by a snapping noise like the jingling of a telephone during a storm. The sky was clear and there was no sign of a cloud.

In about an hour there was another display of electrical pyrotechnics that fairly flashed the room. In the Selectmen's rooms on the floor above the bank a radiator seemed to be fairly alive with electricity, and even the chairs were charged, and the occupants did not know whether to sit down or stand up. Every one who came in was cautioned and advised to wear rubber shoes and rubber gloves. There was such a demand for the latter that every pair in town was sold. Scores of occupants have suffered shocks, and it has been found dangerous to use the electric knobs without the protection of rubber gloves.

The electricians cannot explain the phenomenon.

APPENDICITIS.

Some Facts Regarding Its Rapid Increase.

Appendicitis among Americans is certainly increasing and while this is probably due to the excitement and worry of American business life, it is more often directly traceable to constipation. Appendicitis is caused by extraneous matter entering the vermiform appendix and not by the swallowing of seeds. If the digestive organs are kept in perfect condition so the food is duly assimilated and the bowels move gently, at least once a day, appendicitis will never develop. Don't take chances. Regular doses of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin before meals will strengthen the organs of digestion, your appetite will be good, constipation disappears and you feel better in every way. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin does not relax the bowels by irritation, but by curing indigestion, the cause of constipation. F. D. Hall and E. F. Johnson sell it in 50c and $1.00 bottles, under a positive guarantee. Write for book of testimonials to Pepsin Syrup Co., Dent 5, Monticello, Ill.

STRONG BILL

Presented This Week at Idlewild Park Casino—Big Crowd Present Last Night—Features.

It was stated that the program for this week at the park casino would be a good one, but how good could not be satisfactorily ascertained until the first presentation of the program, which gave excellent satisfaction to all who witnessed it.

Standing room was at a premium last night and all who were present expressed great satisfaction with every feature presented.

Lozelle, the sensational gymnast in his fine work appeared to reach the acme of perfection as he performed many wonderful and striking feats of a gymnastic nature, some of which might almost be considered as being beyond human skill especially his double turn on the bar. He is a whole show in himself.

Joe Bonnell had some good new and taking jokes and stories in his monologue and parodies. His singing was splendid.

The skit, "Mr. Flotz, the Floorwalker," presented by James E. Rome, and Marguerite Ferguson, brought down the house with its humor and their choice specialties.

The Ahrens, Newark's favorite acrobats were an addition to the program which had not been advertised, but their fine work was appreciated. This is their third appearance in Newark since they first opened.

Francelli and Lewis in their fine singing won the plaudits of the house. They both have fine voices and our people consider themselves critics in music, hence their success.

Last but not least by any means was the work of the three Hills, the world's greatest hand balancers. Their work has never been excelled in Newark and their feats were striking and taking. The little Hill, the Mole Hill, as it were, was of course the star of the evening, and just too sweet for anything, as an enthusiastic lady admirer gently breathed near the newspaper man's ear.

Altogether, the program for this week is one which should not be missed by our people.

Itching Scalp.

Scalp Head and the most Violent Form of Eczema and Salt Rheum Promptly and Thoroughly Cured by Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment.

Among small children, scald head and similar itching skin diseases are most prevalent, and the worst feature is that these ailments, which are apparently trivial at first almost invariably develop into chronic eczema if neglected.

There is but one treatment that physicians are unanimous in recommending for scald heads and eczema, and that is Dr. Chase's Ointment, the great antiseptic healer. It promptly stops the distressing itching which accompanies these diseases and positively produces a thorough and complete cure.

Mr. J. H. Grant, 716 Joseph Chapman avenue, Detroit, Mich., writes:

"For three years I have been troubled by an intense itching on my body. So terrible was it at times that I could get no rest night or day. I tried all kinds of ointments and blood purifiers, but could get no relief. Mr. H. A. Nicolai of 379 Division street recommended Dr. Chase's Ointment. A few applications stopped the itching and I have felt nothing since."

Baby Eczema.

Mr. F. S. Rose, of 133 Sixteenth street, Buffalo, N. Y., writes:

"Our baby boy suffered for some time with that wretched eczema, and we were unable to find anything to cure or even relieve his pain. A few applications of Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment stopped the itching and healed the sores, and a bright, natural skin now takes their place."

BELL

Fastened on Buzzard's Neck in 1860. Bird Then Old, Is Still Living in Missouri.

Columbia, Mo., Aug. 12.—Since the publication in the papers of July 28 of the story of a bell buzzard which has been visiting Boone county at long intervals for nearly half a century, extraordinary interest has been manifested, and it is believed that the origin of the bell has been explained.

C. S. Balfew of Harg, this county, was the first to announce the return of the strange visitor, which had been absent so long, this time, that it had been given up for dead. Considerable discussion resulted and Mr. Balfew received a number of communications, among which was a letter from Herbert Gray of Huntsville, Mo., which perhaps explains the origin of the bell.

He says that in 1860 an old buzzard was pulled from a hollow log on the farm of his grandfather near Hallsville, sixteen miles north of Columbia. Though very old, the buzzard fought fiercely and the efforts of several slaves were required to fasten a sleigh-bell to its neck with an iron band, as ordered by their master. The bird was then set free and orders given that no buzzards should be shot on the premises for fear that the one thus identified should be killed.

Since then it has been visiting this county at ever increasing intervals, its last absence it is said, covering a period of fifteen years. As the bird was gray with age in 1860 it is fair to believe that it may be several hundred years old. The grim old bird is now seen in this vicinity almost daily, according to the statements of many farmers.

BIRTHS IN DUTCHLAND

The Odd Observances When the Stork Comes to Holland.—The Signal on the Front Door.

In some of the towns of Holland, especially those which in past time suffered much from Spanish invaders under King Philip II, there is prevailing the strange custom of announcing the birth of a child by hanging to the front door a rapper or knocker called "klopper," enveloped in linen, lace or cloth. This usage, which is still observed, particularly by patrician families, is said to derive its origin from a Spanish ordinance according to which soldiers seeking quarters were forbidden to be billeted at houses where newborn children had arrived. A half-wrapped up "klopper" announces the birth of a girl, one wholly enveloped that of a boy. Modern fashion demands costly lace, which in some cases is inherited from generation to generation, and again the lace to be employed to be wound round the mother's wedding bouquet is often used for this purpose. A rapper's head, shield, denotes the birth of a son, one half red and half white that of a daughter.

No bath room is complete without a "bath seat." See them at 34 South Third street.

ADIRONDACK TREATMENT

For Consumption Tried Successfully by Warren K. Moorehead Who is Well Known in Licking County—Prof. Moorehead Describes the Simple Treatment.

Saturday's Advocate contained a notice of the appointment of Warren K. Moorehead formerly of this county, and one of the best known archaeologists of the country, as curator of the new museum for Phillips academy at Andover, Mass. Prof. Moorehead has just been cured of consumption, and he tells of the "Adirondack treatment for pulmonary tuberculosis" in the following language:

Having been cured of acute pulmonary tuberculosis, I think it not more than right that I should tell, from the viewpoint of a layman, something regarding the "open air treatment" so successfully employed at Saranac Lake and elsewhere in the Adirondacks. Statistical tables, covering a period of 21 years, and including a very large number of cases, form a correct and scientific basis for deductions as to the most efficacious cure during all this time, and that is not medicine but air—pure air.

I have seen with my own eyes scores of persons, who went to Saranac Lake suffering from consumption, who have since been discharged cured. When one observes these wonderful cures brought about by pure mountain air, diet and absolute rest, that person can not but feel the deepest pity for those who are inveigled into purchasing the many inhalers, etc., or who are persuaded to take the several lymph treatments, most of which are simply frauds invented by quacks and charlatans, who thrive on the credulity of the public, who through the market places and vaunt their worthless wares in the faces of suffering men and women.

Saranac Lake is in the heart of the Adirondacks. It has all the conveniences of modern towns. After much experience, the doctors at Saranac Lake have concluded that there is nothing so efficacious in the healing of lesions in the lungs, as pure, cold air, absolute rest, and nutritious food.

As nearly all consumptives have fever, we will suppose that Mr. A. arrives at Saranac Lake with a temperature of 101. He has been told by his local physician that he needs a change; that his right lung is slightly affected, etc. I know of thirty cases where the home physician sent them away as "having a little trouble," but not real consumption. The doctors ascertain that considerable tissue in one lung is involved and immediately order the patient to secure a comfortable room and follow the treatment. This consists of going out on the porch immediately after breakfast and sitting absolutely still until supper time. It does not matter whether the temperature is 20 degrees above zero or 20 below, the treatment must be followed. This is rather difficult the first two or three days, but after acclimation, the patient not only becomes resigned, but actually likes the treatment, and after sitting out all day, on his coming inside, the house seems close and the air impure.

The statistics collected at Saranac Lake prove the original theory of the founder of this resort—that the lungs trouble presses the incipient stage.

want rest, not exercise. And so all patients are compelled to keep quiet, and when the lungs are kept still the necessary time, the lesions heal the fever disappears, the patient gains in weight and he is soon discharged cured. Those cases not saved in the Adirondacks may or may not be cured elsewhere, but it is safe to say that upwards of 50 per cent of all tuberculous patients sent to the Adirondacks are permanently cured. Many not cured there can not be cured anywhere, were they to travel all over the earth.

The advantage of the Adirondack climate over other places is superior for this reason—the climate is more nearly like that of the Atlantic seaboard of the Mississippi Valley, than are the climatic conditions of the Southwest. Therefore, when a case leaves Saranac, pronounced cured, he can live almost anywhere in the United States. When he comes from the Southwest the change is so great that he frequently relapses. This was true of my own case.

All the houses of Saranac Lake are built with little glass porches, roofed over and enclosed upon three sides and open at one end. Persons sit out, well wrapped up, in these protected porches in all kinds of weather, and frequently when the temperature is far below zero. The air is tonic, not chilling. The cold is not felt. I have seen patients gain from 40 to 50 pounds in six months. I have seen discouraged, despondent living skeletons become fat, good-natured and jolly individuals in one winter. These were restored to health, not through advertised nostrums, neither by sucking medicated air through infernal tubes, out by sitting out in God's pure mountain air on the cold "st" days and inhaling atmospheres laden with the odors of pine balsam, spruce, hemlock and cedar—for Saranac Lake is surrounded by a hundred miles of Adirondack forests.

All persons who have good stomachs daily eat three meals and two lunches, or as much of nutritious food as it is possible for the system to assimilate. The things considered best are rare beef, quantities of milk, all of the cereals raw eggs, etc. Some patients drink three quarts of milk daily. With the system well nourished, the mind entirely free from care and employed in reading the lightest of literature or conversing with friends, there is every chance of a speedy and permanent recovery.

That which the doctors insist upon is the coming of patients to the Adirondacks, in the incipient stage of the disease. I have known many cases, kept at home by local physicians who should have known better until too fat gone to be saved. Such cases—acute tuberculosis, or the third stage of consumption—should remain at home to die surrounded by their friends.

Those who "have a little cough" or "feel warm toward evening," should have their lungs examined at once and go to the Adirondacks before the lungs trouble presses the incipient stage.

FRIEND

Paid All Wedding Bills, Then Gave the Groom Money and Secured Him a Position.

Anderson, Ind., Aug. 12.—A wedding tinged with romance and some mystery occurred at the Grand Hotel Sunday. A man who registered as T. B. Armstrong of Louisville, said he had come here for the purpose of making a wedding match for a friend. Armstrong was gone during the morning and returned with a couple that gave their names as Clarence Surfco and Miss Katie Stamm of Alexandria. A license was secured and the couple were married by the Rev. Sidney Bennett at the hotel.

Mr. Armstrong assumed practically the role of father to the couple, attending to the details paid all the costs, including hotel service for a limited time, and then gave the groom some bills from a large roll of money. Armstrong said that Surfco was his friend and was worthy of having a better time than he had enjoyed.

Armstrong then made application for a position for the groom in the hotel and he was given a job as waiter. Armstrong wished the couple much happiness, bade them good bye and left for Louisville.

CERTAIN TO WIN.

Some Easy "Sure Things" Safe to Bet Against.

There are many things which at first thought appear to be easy enough of accomplishment that it is pretty safe to bet a man he cannot do. Most people know that the human hands are not strong enough to break a new-laid egg if the hands are clasped and the egg laid end-wise between the palms. It is said that the pressure required to break an egg in this manner amounts to tons. Among other safe bets is a wager that a man cannot rise from a chair without bending forward or putting his feet under the chair or outside of it.

Many a man will back himself to give another a start of 50 yards in a dash of 100, proving the man having the start, hops all the way. But no runner, however swift, can give that amount of start to an ordinary man. For the first five yards they go practically the same pace. Therefore the runner, to go 95 yards while the "hopper" goes 45 would have to run more than twice as fast, and it would be a weak man who could not hop 45 yards at a pace equal to 20 seconds for 100 yards, and that would mean that the runner in order to win, would have to beat all previous records.

If a man boasts that his penknife is particularly sharp ask him to cut with one stroke of the blade, one of those yellow ribbons, mostly of silk which come around bundles of cigars. In 999 cases out of 1,000 the knife is not sharp enough to do this. It will cut through all the ribbon except the last strand and that will pull out long and the man he tries to cut it the longer it will pull out.

It is safe to bet any one except a blind man that he cannot stand without support for the kind for five minutes at a stretch if he is thoroughly unfolded without moving his feet. If he does not move his feet he is pretty sure to topple over in about a minute.

Had a Narrow Escape.

A young man from Cambridge who had spent the day at Newark, returning home through here last evening at 8 o'clock on an excursion train barely escaped suffering what would probably have been a fatal accident. In his effort to step from the moving train he missed the platform and stepped on the ground between it and the track. As he reached the ground he fell forward alighting in the arms of Police man Thomas Allen, who saved him from injury by supporting him and lifting him upon the platform. To use common injury by supporting him and lift was several minutes before the trembling young man could utter his thanks.—Today's Zanesville Times Recorder.

THIS OMAHA WOMAN TRIED TO

As She Has Been Given a Valuable Piece of Land—Aspirants for Her Hand.

Omaha, Neb. Aug. 12.—When in the dark hour of her despondency Mrs. Hazel Silvia Wood sought a peaceful death in her little room at the Central Hotel a fortnight ago she thought that poverty and the friendlessness that so often accompanies it approached nigh unto the depth of human suffering, but now she finds that wealth and the fawning friendliness that is its accompaniment causes almost as much annoyance.

Mrs. Wood a short time ago found herself out of work, a stranger, in debt $15 for her room and with the future uncertain. Yet within a day came the news that she was heiress to a farm valued at $17,000 near Elk Horn, and that she had a share coming from a valuable estate left by her father at Tallahassee, Fla.

Her father had been estranged from the family, and when the letter conveying the news of the fortune was on the way the woman was driven to attempt suicide owing to the desperate poverty in which she was placed with her five-year-old child.

When the story was published abroad and the fortune was increased by imaginative correspondents the bachelors of the country became interested. The woman was besieged with letters from far and near proposing marriage, among which was one from Evangelist Walker, of Milan, Bradford county, Pennsylvania. The evangelist suggested in poorly constructed and spelled English that his religion joined with her fortune would make a great combination.

The reverend gentleman also makes the marginal request to "rite me please," and incloses a business card with a cute little picture of a five-year-old lad "boing sweet nbtthings in to the ear of a tiny miss of about the same age as he affectionately clasps his arm about her neck. The business end of the card indicates that the evangelist has wall-paper samples for distribution.

Mrs. Wood has declined or ignored all overtures. To avoid personal calls she has changed her residence and desires it understood she is not looking for a husband to care for her prospective fortune.

CHEAPER

RATE TO MANSFIELD FOR LABOR DAY IS DEMANDED.

Trades Council Declares $1.25 is Too
High—Big Excursion May Yet be Declared Off.

The Newark Trades Council had an overflowing meeting on Sunday. The large hall was packed. The meeting was called to order by President Bloom.

The transportation committee reported that Mr. Copper, the division passenger agent of the B. & O. road would agree to furnish a $1.25 rate from Newark to Mansfield on Labor Day, but that that was the best that could be done. The secretary of the Trades Council was instructed to correspond with the secretary of the Trades Council at Mansfield, and have the council at that place endeavor to obtain cheaper rates, and in case they failed to do so, it was unanimously resolved to remain at home.

The delegates from the Grocery Clerks' Union reported that Charles Ellis had been expelled from the union for running cars during the street car strike.

This morning the committee from the Newark Trades Council had a conference with Passenger Agent Copper regarding the rates to Mansfield, but the best that Mr. Copper would agree to do was to give a $1.25 rate. A committee from the Mansfield Trades Council will come down tomorrow, when another conference will be had, and if an agreement cannot be reached it is possible that Newark people will remain at home on Labor Day.

Invitation from Mansfield.

Hoping to have as many of you with us as can arrange to do so. I am, Yours truly,

NATURAL GAS

APPLICATION FOR INJUNCTION
AGAINST OLD COMPANY

The Newark Company Going Ahead
Making Contracts with Consumers—Rates for the Same.

City Solicitor P. B. Smythe and Attorney Edward Kibler attorneys for the city in the case of the City of Newark against the Newark Natural Gas and Fuel company, will go to Marion on Thursday for the purpose of hearing an application for an injunction before Judge Davis of the Supreme court to restrain the company from requiring its patrons to put in meters.

Hon. S. M. Winn, the well known attorney of Zanesville, O., who is President of "The New Natural Gas company" of this city, whose wells are located in McKean township, has his office permanently located in this city. The office is on the South Side of the Square in the room also occupied by Judge S. M. Swartz and Attorney R. W. Howard. Mr. Winn is employing agents and solicitors to make contracts for the ensuing season with the new company, and he is also making contracts at his office. Contracts are made for flat rate or by meter. The meter rate is 15 cents per thousand feet, the company to furnish the meter. The flat rate for cooking stoves is from $1.00 to $1.25 per stove, per month the company to furnish the meter, and for heating purposes $3.00 per month. It is charged for furnaces, cooking contracts for the year and heating contracts for seven months.

Mr. Winn is greatly encouraged over the flattering outlook of the new enterprise. One solicitor secured 30 contracts in two days, and others are meeting with excellent success.

BESANT ON KING ALFRED.

Sir Walter's Tribute to the Great
Anglo-Saxon Leader.

These extracts are from advance sheets of "The Story of King Alfred," by Sir Walter Besant, issued by D. Appleton & Co., New York:

In the name of everything that is dear to us and profitable to us; in the name of godliness, patience, resolution, frankness, wisdom and self sacrifice, let us endeavor to make King Alfred better known to his great-grandchildren. We are all his great-grandchildren. Our ancestors of a thousand years ago numbered all the people of Wessex, Kent and Sussex, and among them the royal line of Cerdic, with Alfred as the common great-grandfather. Do not call him the creator or the founder of anything. He renewed the foundations; he made the growth and development of England possible; he gave us our fleet, our army, our institutions, our religion, our arts and our trade. Not that he invented, created or founded these things. His brother had a fleet; there were English armies before his time; there was a code of laws before his own; there was a foreign trade; there were arts before Alfred lived.

But everything had been destroyed and Alfred, in restoring and renewing the foundations and made things stable which before were unstable; placed on the solid rock of religion what had previously rested on the shifting sands of tradition. His secret was the entire absence of personal ambition or aggrandizement. He worked for his people, and in working for them alone he established his own name and fame for as long as the English name shall last.

I venture to express my own personal hope that, great as were the achievements of Alfred, the keynote to be struck and to be maintained will be that Alfred is and will always remain the typical man of our race—call him Anglo-Saxon, call him American, call him Englishman, call him Australian—the typical man of our race at his best and noblest.

I like to think that the face of the Anglo-Saxon at his best and noblest is the face of Alfred. I am quite sure and certain that the mind of the Anglo-Saxon at his best and noblest is the mind of Alfred—that the aspirations, the hopes, the standards of the Anglo-Saxon at his best and noblest are the aspirations, the hopes, the standards of Alfred.

He is truly our leader, our founder, our king. When our monument takes shape and form, let it somehow recognize this great, cardinal fact. Let it show somehow by the example of Alfred the Anglo-Saxon at his best and noblest—here within the circle of the narrow seas or across the ocean, wherever King Alfred's language is spoken, wherever King Alfred's laws prevail, into whatever fair lands of the wide world King Alfred's descendants have penetrated.

WALKING AUTOGRAPH ALBUM

Tortoise in Ozarks Bears Names of Citizens Written Years Ago.

The preservation of records for many years on a terrapin's shell is no longer a myth in Maries county, says a Dixon (Mo.) dispatch to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. That these slow going animals survive for an indefinite period and sometimes revisit their former haunts is equally well established by a curious find made by Sheriff J. L. Copeland of Maries county near Vienna recently. The sheriff chanced to pick up a small land terrapin or tortoise, such as are common in the Ozark country, by the roadside. On examination the animal proved to be a living, walking autograph album, bearing the monograms of a number of prominent citizens of Maries county and dating back over 20 years.

The shell was covered with initials, carved with a knife. Among them were: "W. R. E." William Ellis of Dixon, Mo., 1881; "B. H." Bill H. of Dixon, Mo., 1881; "J. P. Anderson, 1887." John Bader, 1897, ex-commissioner of the county. Other initials were those of J. T. Hoops and one "P. O." whose owner is unknown. Some of the monograms were well worn and barely legible. Sheriff Copeland inscribed his name with the rest and started the terrapin out on another journey.

BIG PHOTOGRAPH PLATE.

Largest Ever Made Now Under Way
at St. Louis.

The largest photograph plate ever made is being manufactured by a dry plate company of St. Louis. It is 8 feet long by 4 feet and 8 inches wide and three-eighths of an inch in thickness, says the New York Times. It will be used by George Lawrence of Chicago, who from a balloon will make a photograph of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

To make the plate it was necessary for the company to procure new apparatus of enlarged dimensions. A great marble slab larger than the plate was the first requirement. Upon this the plate is resting while the coating is being applied. Large blocks of ice beneath it keep it at a temperature that will cool the emulsion as rapidly as it is applied.

The making of such large plates is an experiment, but the company says that it can be carried on successfully and probably will become a new feature of the business.

Felt In With Sengolung Mosquitoes.

Captain Aiken of the British steamer Lord Ormonde, which recently arrived at Baltimore from Las Palmas, reports, according to the Philadelphia Record, that when about 60 miles east of the Cape a cloud of mosquitoes boarded the vessel, and in a few minutes took full possession, invading the innermost recesses of the ship and making life a burden during the rest of the voyage to Baltimore.

A Day's News from Licking County Court House.

Etta Cochran, by her attorney, Carl Norpell has filed a petition asking for alimony from Wm. Cochran. The parties were married Sept. 24, 1900, and have no children. The plaintiff says that on April 1, 1901, she and the defendant went to housekeeping on the Elisha Gutridge farm in Franklin township and from that time on the defendant has failed to provide her with the necessities of life and that on August 10 the defendant during the absence of the plaintiff hauled away nearly all the household furniture and declared his intention of never living with her again. She asks that he be enjoined from disposing of his property pending the suit for alimony.

In Common Pleas court this morning a portion of the testimony was heard in the case of James E. Jones vs. The Methodist Episcopal church and Thos. Hirst. The remainder of the case will be heard Wednesday afternoon next. Flory & Flory; Randolph, Seward, Norpell.

Careful Prescription Work

Have you ever thought what that means?

Suppose your tailor would make a suit from shoddy cloth. The clothes wouldn't hang or wear well even though cut correctly. So in prescriptions good service means more than being careful about weights and measures. It means carefulness long before your prescription is brought to us. It means that we have been careful as to purity when buying chemicals, and have exercised care in making all those liquid medicines which we keep ready for use on our shelves and in our closets. We are careful in every step of prescription work.

News of The Railroads.

Railroad Too Busy.

Connellsville, Aug. 12.—Down on a little mountain farm near Clarksburg, W. Va., Mable Brown sorrows for the postponement of her wedding day because a railroad is so short-handed that it is impossible for her lover to get leave of absence long enough to help pay the words that will make them one. James Handcock is a brakeman on the B. & O. and rests from his run on the Pittsburg division at a boarding house here. More than two weeks ago he and his sweetheart decided upon their wedding day and he made application to the chief dispatcher for leave of absence. "How long do you want?" asked the chief, and his brakeman replied just long enough to get married. "You can't go now," was the answer. "We haven't got enough men. Have to put it off, I guess," Handcock is now encouraging young men to make application for the extra list.

Kirk Foster, a machinist at the B. & O. shops, had a heavy piece of iron fall on his left foot badly mashing it, and he is off duty in consequence.

HINTS FOR CAMPERS

A Few Timely Suggestions for Newark People Who Are Enjoying Out Door Life.

(Zanesville Signal.)

When you go camping, you can not help observing that

Idea of work and pleasure become interchangeable.

That the first hour or two there is always a great rivalry for the possession of the ax, but never afterward.

That the fellow who would rather fish than eat is never out of sigh, at meal time.

That the professions of knowledge or ignorance of the art of cooking are entirely at variance with the facts.

That there is always one queer fellow who delights in snacking off and returning with a staggering load of garden truck, where and how he got which he refuses to tell, and in the hope that you will think he had not paid for it.

That the fellow who says oftenest that the proper way to get stuff to eat is to gather it in the dark, is always "dead on his feet" at sundown, if one proposes to adopt his foraging plan.

That at least one of the crowd is "over-hill" for "ladies' day," is fertile of suggestion for the occasion, and, after it is over, always suggests a return date.

That the man whose brother fought in Cuba is always a stickler for proper drainage and sanitation.

That the laziest man in the crowd is the one who sleeps least, while the most energetic one kicks hardest if his rest is disturbed.

That visitors always ask first about the fish—of which you have none—and second about mosquitoes—and then you swear.

If you give us a trial we will prove that we merit it by regularly calling upon you with fresh buttermilk of a most excellent grade. The Licking County Creamery.

saying that he is getting along nicely in the west and is running a construction train on the new line building from Salt Lake to Los Angeles, his headquarters being on the line of Utah and Nevada, but his family is at present living in Evanston, Wyo. The excursion came in three sections and the excursionists were unloaded at the B. & O. depot, going from there to the park on the electric cars. Of a Mexican Peddler to Two Atrocious Murders—Is Suspected of Three Others.

San Antonio, Tex., Aug. 12.—The capture and confession of Juan Delgado a Mexican peddler, clears up a series of mysterious murders and assaults on women. He admits killing Mrs. George H.
